1	Burma
2	Cambodia (Reproductive Health Association of Cambodia (RHAC))	1. Comprehensive SRHR information to young people, especially in formal education settings. 2. Access to SRHR services (time, price, and geographical accessibility).	Young workers, young fishermen and young people in rural areas. Also young people in general.	Will conduct research to addressing the vulnerability of young people together with Ministry of Health to promote services and information for young people.	Capacity building for young volunteers, government, and existing programme beneficiaries.	Have internal division on young people. National and local teams consist of 20+ people. Ad-hoc work with several youth-led networks in some provinces.
3	China (Yunnan Health and Development Research Association (YHDRA))	1. Marginalized young people's participation—especially ethnic minorities. 2. Address intergenerational relationship within organizations and beyond—share decision making, communication and research design.	Young ethnic minorities/indigenous people living in border areas to address the vulnerability of young women and girls.	Qualitative research to map young people's issues in indigenous groups and border areas. The research will also involve young researchers.	Capacity building on advocacy and basic evidence generations methods with using qualitative and quantitative data collections. Emphasizing linkage between young people programme in and out of school settings, and also in rural and urban area.	Haven't got any partnership with youth-led organizations but willing to work in collaboration with young researcher associations and giving technical assistance to young people-led network in border area between China and Burma.
4	Indonesia (Yayasan Jurnal Perempuan (YJP))	1. Comprehensive Sexuality Education 2. The human rights of young people to participate and involve in decision making table. 3. Creating linkage between SRHR and the human rights of young people.	General population of young people especially young women and girl, and marginalized young people such as young people in religious organization— Nahdatul Ulama and Muhammadiyah.	Creating a formal youth-led advocacy strategy to advocate for comprehensive sexuality education and working to consolidate young people-led networks.	Capacity building on sexuality, human rights and gender issues for general population of young people which aim to generate evidence based strategy for broad-based alliance of YJP's youth constituencies.	Integrated youth division working to mainstream curriculum and provide alternative media to larger population of young people. Has worked in partnership with national and local young people-led networks.
